MONEYSHOW SENTIMENT INDICATOR REVEALS INVESTORS
BULLISH FOR 2014

ORLANDO, FL. January 30, 2014 – MoneyShow.com, the largest multimedia investment education destination for investors, traders, and financial advisors, announced the results of its MoneyShow.com Investors' survey at The World MoneyShow in Orlando, Florida. Results reveal 64% of investors predict the S&P 500 will increase between now and the end of the year. Not surprisingly, more than 70% of investor's believe inflation will increase over the course of the year.

Investors, 76%, are predicting modest GDP growth this year and more than 65% predict unemployment will remain at levels between 6 and 7%. Small or mid-cap stocks (45%) and Large-cap U.S. stocks (44%) are the asset classes investors anticipate performing best for the remainder of the year. Gold is no longer popular among most investors with just 19% picked it or other precious metals as an investment they would buy before the end of the year. It is clear investors are getting off the sidelines and investing in equities or are pulling out of bonds for the short term. Just 11% plan to buy bonds before the end of the year.

The MoneyShow.com Investors' Sentiment Indicator polled 1,344 investors between January 21 and January 26.
